FIRE INSURANCE NOTICES, &c. SOUTHERN PROTECTION INSURANCE

COMPANY, ALEXANDRIA, VIRGINIA.

SATURDAY MORNING, JULY 23, 1859.

CAPITAL OVER 350,000 DOLLARS, AND CONSTANTLY INCREASING. The Charter of this Company offers more favorable advantages to the farmer and others, than any Company chartered in the State, by insuring with or without a premium note. If the applicant prefer, he can pay the full amount of the premium in cash, or by effecting a cash insurance for two years, the insured saves one-eighth of the amount would otherwise have to pay; or by becoming a member, and giving a small premium note, the in-sured saves nearly one-half of the amount charged by Stock Companies, when insuring from year to car. This is the advantage resulting from the imbination of the CASH AND MUTUAL PRINCIPLE. This Company commenced issuing Policies against loss of damage by fire, on the 13th day of March, 1854, since which time over seven thousand seven hundred persons have insured and become members of the Company, and over seventy thousand dollars have been paid for losses. Having increased our business during the past year, we feel grateful for the liberal patronage bestowed upon the Company thus far, and for its flattering pro-pects of future usefulness. The Directors hope and believe, that, by prudence, caution, and a rigid system of economy, they will establish for this Company a reputation for cheapness and safety not surpassed by any Company in the U. States. All differences in settlement of losses, may be determined by three disinterested arbitrators of the County where such loss happened, to be mutually chosen by the insured and the Company.

It has, for instance, been suggested that not a little of the prevailing type of the thoughts and purposes of an age or country might sometimes be strikingly exhibited in for instance, remarked that the officers returning from that terrible winter in the Crimea, during the late Russian war, all wore the beard long. This had originated in convenience if not necessity while abroad, and 2 50 to 12 00 a long beard became the type and symbol of martial excellence in the courts and drawing-rooms of London and of Paris. Just in proportion as the military spirit revived over Europe, as it has been doing ever since, a twisted moustache and a long beard, fit for Gents' Fob and Vest Chains..... 10 00 to 30 00 a Turk, have become the fashion, and multi-Sets Cameo, Gold Stone, Paint- tudes, without reflecting upon why. follow the fashion, and men whose thoughts and purposes and lives are quite guiltless of actually shedding anything but ink, exhibit what would have seemed, a few years, ago, the strongest characteristics of a son of Mars.

> beard. Forty years ago the toupee was all the rage. The hair, by the aid of hard brushing and pomatum, was made to stand straight up, and brushed close to the head at the sides, so as to give the head the appearance of height and the supremacy of firmness and all the other higher moral qualities .-This was succeeded by many reactions and modifications. Still there has generally been the tendency to keep the top of the head 1 50 pretty high. But, by degrees, the Paris fashion and the court of Napoleon have for 2 50 the last few years been in favor of making the crown of the head appear as low as possible, by throwing out the hair and whiskers at the sides of the face, and all around behind the ears and at the back. This gives a sort of cat like roundness to the sides of the head. instead of the oval, which used to be thought graceful and appropriate. Is there any connection between the shape of the head as presented in the Paris draw ing-rooms and cabinet counsels and Court levees, and pictures of them at this moment, and the style and type of mind they might seem to indicate, according to the principles of physiology and phrenology? Is not fashion sometimes an idol, and an attempt to realize and give bodily form to an ideal type of humanity, which has become beautiful to the mind? For instance, we often see a countenance that at first seems homely enough, but if the possessor of it possesses certain rare traits of usefulness and of goodness certain expressions and even the contour of that face become beautiful in our eyes and all the more so from being new and unusual. If, then, a number of persons become emi-GIFTS AND BOOKS WITHOUT MONEY. nent in the public service, with a peculiar shape and style of head, it must and will set the fashion, and become the rage and type of beauty. If we suppose anything of this kind to be the source of the present fashion and style of head dresses, what does it indicate as to the prevailing style and type of ideas now fashionable at headquarters in France and 500,000 are ready to be given away, mailed free throughout Europe? It would indicate a great increase of the combative propensitie of man as about to become current. It would tell us that the counsels of Europe are about to rely upon quick wittedness rather than the firm and consistent pursuit of one steady line of policy, that concealment and secretiveness and duplicity, in every form and type, are about to receive a large additional illustration in the coming time—in a word, that the tiger is about to become unchained, as Franklin once expressed it, and let loose upon the world. Twenty years ago every thing was made of the intellectual and moral developments, but the rest of the man were disproportionately ignored. Perhaps now it is all the other way, and the qualities that have been despised are coming to be worshipped. Perhaps out of the whole we may get a better type of man .- Philadelphia
